World Day on the Mall / Patriot Day Celebration

World Day on the Mall will be held on September 11, 2002, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Centennial Mall outside the State Office Building. This annual event celebrates the diverse cultures in the Nebraska and honors the daily contributions of Nebraska’s State employees.

This year the event is combined with Patriot’s Day, the official designation for September 11. This event is the culmination of a month-long remembrance of all those who perished on September 11 and acknowledgement of those who are battling the continuing war on terrorism. As Governor Johanns has remarked, “As we approach the one year anniversary of those horrible and cowardly attacks on our nation and our freedom, Nebraskans will be displaying their unity and patriotism.”

Governor Johanns has asked Nebraskans to display their flag or other patriotic colors at their homes and businesses during the month “as a sign of freedom and remembrance.”

Corkey Ford of HHSS will MC the event. The Nebraska National Guard will present the colors. Governor Johanns will give the opening remarks.

Entertainment will be provided by Ex Animo (barbershop quartet), the Mexican Folklore Dancers, the Throwing Picassos, and the Plymouth Brass.

World Day on the Mall/Patriot Day will host a variety of food and information vendors from various cultures. Please call Emily Weddle at (402) 471-3678 or email at eweddle@notes.state.ne.us with any questions or comments.

Blood Drive

Governor Johanns is encouraging all Nebraska citizens who are physically able, to donate blood during the next few weeks as we lead up to the anniversary of the horrific tragedy that stuck our country September 11. “Giving blood is vitally important to ensuring the gift of life is available at times of tragedy and I urge all Nebraskans who are physically able to participate in this effort,” Johanns said.

At the recent meeting of the Midwestern Governor’s Conference, Governor Johanns encouraged his fellow governors to promote blood drives during this time as well.

The next State employee blood drive will be held at the new Community Blood Bank donation center the week of September 9-13. The week-long drive provides many opportunities and should accommodate a wide variety of schedules.

“As this one-year anniversary approaches, let’s show the world that our patriotic spirit runs deep and that we will never forget the sacrifices of other Americans and people from other nations who lost their lives on that September day,” Johanns said.

For more information on the new donation center and schedule see page 12.
Are You Ready?

The NIS Project initiatives are going full steam. We’ve held numerous workshops, sponsored meetings, attended IIFs, and started Town Hall gatherings. There is a website (http://www.das.state.ne.us/nis/), updated daily, containing an FAQ section. We have a monthly newsletter. Many hours of work continue to be devoted to getting this project off the ground. For good or ill, folks, NIS is coming.

Are you ready?

Mark this down on your calendars: October 15, 2002. This is the “go-live” date for the Human Resources portion of the NIS Project. What does this mean to all of us in State government? It means the end and the beginning. It is the end of how we currently perform HR functions. It is the end of fragmented systems created by different agencies. It is the end of information that cannot be disseminated easily.

What begins is a new opportunity. Employee Self Service opens up many new doors. People will now be able to access and update their employee information with the click of a mouse. Agencies will be able to obtain valuable information in seconds, where it used to take days. We are going to be able to communicate and share with one another in ways we’ve never been able to before.

Do you know me?? Can you hear me now??

Catch phrases by some clever ad agencies have annoyed us for years. But do you remember the product? If so, they were successful. The Nebraska Department of Aeronautics would like you to hear us and know us.

The Department of Aeronautics has, as one of its functions, the ability to provide air transportation for all state agencies. To provide this service, the Department operates four aircraft on a non-profit basis, passing the savings on to you. The aircraft are equipped for all-weather flying and are piloted by commercially-rated, highly-experienced pilots.

Special session cuts and other budget balancing tools will impact every agency. The Department of Aeronautics can help stretch your transportation dollars. Do you know that eight people can fly to Scottsbluff and return for about $300 per person? That is based on a full airplane. The NDA doesn’t fly full airplanes every trip. Just as airlines leave “profits” at the gate when the airplane is not full, the state loses a potential cost savings opportunity. It costs the same for one person to fly as it does for a full airplane.

There is a solution. It takes some new thinking. You need to look beyond just one agency’s lines. We need to be flexible. How? If the state were compared to a large business, the “home office” would be in Lincoln. If one agency coordinated with another, we might be able to establish certain “meeting days” in different locations. Two or more agencies could split the cost of using the airplane. It will still cost about $2400 (8 people X $300) to fly to Scottsbluff, but if some interagency communication and coordination happened, those costs could be split between the using agencies. That can substantially stretch transportation dollars.

Do you know the state of Nebraska has more than 75 airports that can be used by our airplanes? The state aircraft are not limited to flying just in Nebraska. Airplanes are supposed to save time. Transportation time isn’t only the time spent in the airplane. It is the time spent from when you leave the office until you get to your destination.

A Department of Aeronautics airplane can fly you round trip to any of the Denver airports in less time than it will take you to go through security at your local airport. You have the added feature of knowing the passengers on the airplane. If the airplane is full, we will probably even beat the airline ticket price.

We have heard comments that it would be great to fly but it is too expensive. Not so. The economics of a full airplane will compete with automobile transportation on just about every trip when meals, motels, and wages are considered.

The Department of Aeronautics will do everything we can to accommodate your schedule and will be happy to answer any questions about costs, airplane availability, or flying time. Please call Soni at 471-2371.
The Nebraska Assistive Technology Partnership, in association with IMServices, the Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired, the Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, and the CIO’s Office, presented the “Designing Accessible Technology for All Users” seminar on June 12. Topics revolved around information technology design that is compatible with disability technology and accessibility.

Doug Wakefield, Accessibility Specialist, from the U.S. Access Board, Washington, D.C. and Bruce Bailey, Assistive Technology Specialist, from the U.S. Department of Education-Office of the Chief Information Officer, Washington, D.C. were the main speakers.

Mr. Wakefield authored Section 508 Standards. Section 508 Standards require states to reach certain benchmarks of accessibility and compliance. The time line for the creation of the 508 Federal Mandate began in 1973 with the Congressional Rehabilitation Act, which granted access to buildings, services, and so on, to those with disabilities.

The next step occurred in 1986 when agency guidelines were created, but not mandated. Finally, in 1998, the Rehabilitation Act was amended making it necessary and enforceable for procurement and use of IT within Federal agencies to be accessible to those with disabilities. The law governing IT accessibility within state agencies in Nebraska is the Neb. Rev. Stat. Section 73-205, which requires a Technology Access Clause to be included in all purchasing contracts after January 1, 2001. The standards and guidelines can be found at: http://www.nitc.state.ne.us/standards/accessibility/accessibility_standards.pdf

Steve Schafer, the CIO for the State of Nebraska spoke about LB352 Sec. 19, which charges the Chief Information Office, Nebraska Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired, and the NITC with working with other agencies to create a technology access clause. Four actions were outlined. The first step was the implementation, which took place in January 2001. The second step outlined the responsibilities and actions for all agencies. Third, guidelines were created mandating that standards must be made present in all contracts. Finally, the establishment of the expectation that there would be little or no physical changes to costs and functionality.

Don Medinger, of DAS-Materiel Division Administrator, discussed the acquisition of such technologies. Any purchase over $5,000 must come into their office and any purchase over $10,000 must have a competitive bid process. Christy Horn, the ADA/504 Compliance Officer for the University of Nebraska pointed out that employers cannot make a case for undue burden for costs associated with such technologies. The expense must filter up through the system. Ms. Horn also pointed out that the University has an Accommodation Resource Center that allows programmers to test a program in the development phase to insure it employs accommodating technology.

Mr. Bailey, guest speaker from the U.S. Department of Education, provided practical advice and answers on how to design access into information technology and information systems. Incorporating accessibility after the project is completed could be expensive and cost between 50-100% times as much as the original project. Incorporating accessibility from the beginning means only a 1-2% shift in price. Programmers need to include those with disabilities when doing usability testing.

Finally, NIS panel members spoke about the different issues facing NIS. The multiple issues associated with the 508 Standards were thoroughly explored and many questions were answered.

The Assistive Technology Partnership has a grant from the Regional Disability Business Technical Assistance Center (DBTAC) to provide technical assistance to all state agencies on making electronic and information technology accessible. They are working to make state employees aware of what the requirements are and how to meet those requirements when designing accessible information technology.

State of Nebraska Employee Honored

By Emily Weddle

Shirley Lafreniere was born in New York. She lived, worked and raised a family in New York. She moved to Nebraska 20 years ago and has been employed with the State of Nebraska Health and Human Services Systems for the last 18 years.

Shirley Lafreniere will have her quilt block in The World Trade Center/ Pentagon/ PA Memorial quilt. This quilt is being assembled in remembrance of those who lost their lives in the September 11 tragedy.

So how did Shirley find out the details about The World Trade Center/ Pentagon/ PA Memorial quilt and need for quilt blocks? It was Shirley’s 87 year old mother who found out about the request for donated quilt blocks to be used for the Memorial quilt while surfing the internet. With the deadline for entries a week away, Shirley locked herself away for a weekend and worked on the quilt block.

There were certain requirements for completing the block: it had to be red, white and blue with a white background, have a star motif, and be of certain dimensions. Shirley worried about completing the project by the deadline especially with all the requirements, oh and did I mention that Shirley was constructing the block by hand. Shirley completed the block in time, mailed it and waited to see if her block would be chosen to be included in the main quilt.

With Over 19,000 quilt blocks donated, only 3000 blocks were to be used in the main quilt. The remaining quilt blocks will be used to make quilts to donate to those in need. Shirley checked the web site occasionally to see if her block would be chosen; imagine her surprise when she saw her name listed on the web site. Shirley said she had a whole range of emotions when she saw her name. She felt proud, excited and humbled, along with a deep sadness for those whose lives will be forever changed by this tragic event.

I had the opportunity to sit down with Shirley to get the information to write this story and I am so happy that Shirley wanted to share her story. So often in the news it seems harder and harder to find that story that gives you a warm fuzzy. In my opinion this is one of those stories. Thank you Shirley and Congratulations!

The August IIF hosted information on two key issues that will effect many state employees in the upcoming month. The Military Department gave an overview of the Uniform Services Employment and Re-employment Act, (USERA). This act provides employment protections for staff who volunteer for or who are called into active duty in the military. The law also protects employees engaged in annual maneuvers and weekend duty.

Retirement Systems reported on legislated changes to the current State Retirement Program. In the near future, employees will be asked to choose whether to stay with the current defined contribution plan or move to the new cash balance benefit plan. Details will be distributed to employees soon.

The next IIF will be held:
Wednesday, October 16, 2002

Lancaster County Extension

Lincoln NE 68524

These meetings are a chance for Human Resource professionals to share new ideas and encourage others. For information on upcoming events: http://www.das.state.ne.us/personnel/knkn/

Score a Touchdown for Food Safety

Fall is just around the corner and that means it’s football season! It’s the time of year when loyal fans gather to cheer their teams on to victory, and tailgate parties are part of the weekend ritual, especially for those Big Red Husker fans!

Tailgate parties are the perfect way to gather together with family and friends before a big game. The parties range from simple picnic style lunches to elaborate meals cooked on a grill in the parking lot. But, no matter what type of tailgate party you have planned, food safety needs to be a concern, especially when transporting food. September is Food Safety Month, and there’s no better way to tackle the issue of food safety then by remembering a few of the basics.

• Always wash hands thoroughly with soap and hot water, then rinse before beginning any food preparation.
• Hands should be washed and rinsed again, along with all utensils, equipment, and counter tops that have been in contact with any raw food before preparing other foods. Food safety experts advise that so many illnesses could be eliminated if people just wash their hands.
• Plan an interception against food borne illness by keeping cold foods cold, and hot foods hot during a tailgate party.
• Thoroughly chill foods, and then place in cooler with plenty of ice or commercial coolant.
• Keep cooler lids on to retain cold air; avoid opening repeatedly.
• Score a touchdown for food safety by never leaving dishes at room temperature more than two hours, including preparation and service.
• Promptly refrigerate or place items in a cooler once they have been served.
• When going to a tailgate party, why not bring an extra cooler filled with ice and use it to place perishable items for serving.

Bacteria need food, moisture, a favorable temperature and time for growth. Under ideal conditions, their numbers can double every 20 minutes. By following the safe food handling practices, bacteria doesn’t have a chance to grow. Remember, the best defense is a good offense!

Wrap It Up

From coast to coast, wraps are a favorite sandwich. A wrap is a tortilla stuffed full of different sandwich fillings and then wrapped burrito style for easy handling. Wraps are the perfect sandwiches for a tailgate party as they are hand-held and don’t require any silverware. Prepare the filling for the wraps at home and then place in plastic containers for easy traveling. Each person can assemble his or her own wrap for a quick and easy tailgate meal. Why not try a Veggie Egg Wrap, a Turkey Caesar Wrap, or a Turkey Ham Tortilla.

Other favorite tailgate dishes are potato salad or deviled eggs. An easy way to prepare deviled eggs is to put the hard-cooked egg whites in a Ziploc bag and the yolk mixture in another baggy. Transport on ice and then assemble at the party. Simply cut a corner off of the baggy containing the yolk mixture, and pipe into the whites. Viola! You have some great deviled eggs, with little effort and minimal clean up.

In July of 2001, a goal of 1,000 tons was set by the State of Nebraska Recycling Office for fiscal year 2002 recycling efforts. Early on the targeted 83.3 tons per month appeared challenging, based on the previous fiscal year monthly average of 71 tons. After an upsetting September, the monthly tonnage started to rise, consistently exceeding monthly goals by double digits. Our 1,000 ton goal was met in May 2002 and exceeded in June by towering figures. The fiscal year 2002 goal of 1,000 tons was met and surpassed by over 200 tons.

The State of Nebraska Recycling Office is thrilled with these efforts and equally excited about fiscal year 2003. We want to thank all who participate and promote in recycling. Without recycling volunteers and willing individuals who take the time to recycle, there would be no success. If you are interested in joining the State of Nebraska Recycling Team to receive monthly recycling updates, as well as state recycling news, check with your supervisor, then call or write to:

What can we do for the environment when we are looking at purchasing a new item?

First, obvious age-old issues such as “Do I really need this?” and “Should I buy used or rent instead of purchase?” need to be resolved. Today, there is less and less of a price difference between “green” or environmentally friendly products and those products that are not as environmentally friendly, so some of the financial considerations that may have prevented you from purchasing “green” items or products 10 years ago have disappeared. Many businesses, corporations and government entities have started “green” purchasing programs, and this trend will continue.

Second, look for items that can be recycled or reused, or that are made with recycled products. While recycling has grown in general, recycling of specific materials has grown even more drastically: 42 percent of all paper, 40 percent of all plastic soft drink bottles, 55 percent of all aluminum beer and soft drink cans, 57 percent of all steel packaging, and 52 percent of all major appliances are now recycled.

Finally, for what seems like a long time, there has been a program called the ENERGY STAR program. This program puts labels on all sorts of products that are energy efficient. Look for these labels when you buy things. In 2000 alone, ENERGY STAR helped save enough energy to power 10 million homes and reduced pollution equivalent to taking 10 million cars off the road. ENERGY STAR includes over 30 kinds of energy-efficient products, including: stereos, phones, refrigerators, air conditioners, computers, TVs, VCRs and light bulbs. Even buildings, if they save enough energy and use the right equipment, can become ENERGY STAR buildings. For more information on this cool program, check out the EPA web site at www.epa.gov. For additional Pollution Prevention information, go to the DEQ web site at www.deq.state.ne.us and select Programs/Environmental Assistance Program/Pollution Prevention Program.

The committee adopted its mission statement; “To promote a safe and healthy work environment for all Nebraska state employees.” The committee meets monthly in the State Office Building in Lincoln. The committee members encourage state employees to make recommendations and suggestions that will assist in accomplishing the group’s mission.

Who has the ultimate responsibility in assuring that you work safely? YOU!!! The Statewide Safety Committee wants your input on how to ensure that state employees work in the safest possible manner. Workplace safety is the responsibility of each individual and each agency. To promote workplace safety, the Statewide Safety Committee needs input from all agencies.

How can you contribute to a safe and healthy workplace? Ask your manager, supervisor, union steward, or agency head about safety procedures in your workplace. Find out who to contact in your agency on issues of workplace safety and health. Contact your agency safety committee or the Statewide Safety Committee with your ideas and suggestions.

The name of any employee who submits a safety or health recommendation to the Statewide Safety Committee prior to the end of this year will be placed in a drawing to win a safety prize package. The package includes a pair of stylish safety glasses and other safety-related products. To submit your recommendations, or to report any concerns, contact either:
